Darwin Partners with Wolf Professional Risk of Florida to Offer Admitted Lawyers Professional Liability Program

March 5, 2007 (Farmington, Connecticut) – Darwin Professional Underwriters, Inc. (Darwin) (NYSE: DR) announces the availability of its new lawyers professional liability (LPL) program on an admitted basis in the state of Florida, developed to insure standard market LPL risks. Wolf Professional Risk, Inc. will administer the program.

The program is intended for law firms practicing in a variety of disciplines, some of which include criminal, residential real estate, and family law. The product's features incorporate a number of key coverages, such as extended reporting period options (bi-lateral ERP, disability, death, and cessation of practice). The policy also provides coverage for supplementary payments up to $20,000 for grievance procedures.

Included, at no additional charge, as part of the program offering, is an extensive suite of risk management resources such as a newsletter produced by industry experts on legal risk management, online CLE credits, and access to an educational web site offering practical business, legal, and industry information.

According to Annamarie Haught, assistant vice president of Darwin and LPL underwriting practice manager, "Wolf Professional Risk is an incredibly knowledgeable LPL program administrator and is known for building strong relationships with customers, agents, and carriers. We are excited to be collaborating with Wolf Professional Risk in the inauguration of this new program."

"Darwin's breadth of expertise in the specialty insurance market, and broad expertise in the LPL segment make this a winning partnership for us," says Boyd Wolf, president of Wolf Professional Risk. "This is a highly competitive program for Florida-domiciled LPL risks."
